Gain Professional Experience in Washington, D.C.

Misha Dauphinais-Matheson

Country: Canada
University: University of Montreal
Semester: Spring 2015
Internship Site: Near East – South Asia (NESA) Center for Strategic Studies
Program: International Affairs

“The Washington Center (TWC) experience got me acquainted with the professional side of national security. Without it, I would not have acquired so much knowledge about politics and defense studies in the U.S. capital. My greatest accomplishment was co-authoring an article on resource reliance in Gulf Cooperation Council countries, which was then published in the journal of the National Defense College in the United Arab Emirates (UAE).

My advice to the next generation of TWC students is to make the most of their experience in Washington. TWC programs and the internship are only small parts of all that there is to do. Be engaged, get involved, and enjoy everything that the capital has to offer.”
